Following Mehi's album eXposed, Gharou Music and Djinn Music present their second collaborative release, "Pyar Da Jahaan", featuring singer-songwriter Maindi.

Released on 20 July 2011, the single brings a traditional Punjabi song into a mid-tempo electronic setting. Produced by Mehi, with additional remixes by Djinn and Ammo, it offers distinct interpretations united by the song's musical roots.

Traditional roots. Individual interpretations.

A voice at the heart of the song

Maindi brings years of practice and performance experience to “Pyar Da Jahaan”. His melodic delivery and haunting vocal tone provide the focus for a release that balances traditional Punjabi character with an electronic soundscape.

A shared song, three approaches

Mehi produces the single, with Djinn and Ammo contributing their own remixes. Each mix has an individual feel, exploring the song through a different production approach while preserving its traditional roots.

The release’s predominantly mid-tempo electronic influence provides a common thread. Around Maindi’s voice, the different interpretations give listeners more than one way to connect with the same song.

Continuing the collaboration

“Pyar Da Jahaan” follows eXposed as the second release from the Gharou Music and Djinn Music collaboration. It continues an approach that brings artists and producers together to explore different musical perspectives.

A traditional Punjabi song.
An electronic setting.
A voice that connects them.

Released 20 July 2011.
